Zoom \(register here\)

Please join the Office of Global Health for Dr. Tetyana Veslyyeva's presentation on how large-scale social, political, and military events can impact a healthcare system and services, people's lives, and the spread of disease. Dr. Veslyyeva has dedicated her career to children's health, practicing medicine in Ukraine, her home-country, and the United States. Combining her expertise in HIV treatment, pediatric medicine, nephrology, international healthcare, and higher education, she will delve into how social crises become public health crises, when people face displacement and a higher risk of disease, and what might be done to limit the spread of disease in emerging crises.

This event is free and open to the public. For more information about the lecture series, please contact the Office of Global Health by email or visit our website.
